Biographical/Historical Note

During the Civil War, Peter B. McKelvey, a physician of New Orleans, La., served as a surgeon and hospital inspector in the Confederate States Army, Department of Alabama, Mississippi, and East Louisiana in Selma, Ala. After the war, McKelvey took the position of resident physician of the "Quarantine Station" and subsequently resumed his medical practice in New Orleans.

Scope and Content Note

Civil War papers consist of a record book, 1864-1865, containing copies of official correspondence and military hospital inspection reports, military orders, a request to practice medicine in New Orleans, and related papers. Post-war papers are chiefly receipts for advertisement, cards, membership fees for the Boston Club and the National Union Club, rent, taxes, merchandise and various medical journals. A ledger (1865-1869), cashbook (n.d.), and a visiting book (1867) are related to McKelvey's medical practice.
