BIOGRAPHICAL/HISTORICAL NOTE

Elisabeth Kilbourne (1932-) was a resident and local historian in St. Francisville, West Feliciana Parish, Louisiana. Elisabeth married Stephen Plauche Dart (1935-1993), an attorney with Kilbourne & Dart after 1954. The couple were descendants of prominent families in West Feliciana Parish and East Feliciana Parish.

Elisabeth Dart was a member of the Louisiana Historical Association, President of the Friends of Oakley Plantation, and cofounder of the West Feliciana Historical Society. Dart wrote about West Feliciana subjects including "Working on the Railroad: The West Feliciana Railroad, 1828-1842" for the Journal of the Louisiana Historical Association, biographies of notable figures for the Louisiana State Historical Society, and biographies for the Grace Cemetery tour, "Graveyard Tales".

For the West Feliciana Historical Society, she studied West Feliciana Parish genealogy, architecture, and history. West Feliciana Parish includes St. Francisville, historically the business and cultural district of the Parish and the capital of the Republic of West Florida, and Bayou Sara, an antebellum shipping port. Dart researched these locations and their history for various exhibits, lectures, and writings she did for the West Feliciana Historical Society.

Elisabeth K. Dart moved to Portland, Oregon in the 1990s after her husband passed.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

The Elisabeth K. Dart collection (1774, 1787-2005, undated) contains manuscript and research materials used for exhibits, lectures, tours, and writing on West Feliciana Parish. Dart's research into various West Feliciana Parish topics led her to collect original manuscripts and photographs from various West Feliciana Parish families. Dart's personal ties to the West Feliciana Parish and her familial ties to the Kilbourne & Dart Law Firm also added to the collection. Manuscripts include deeds, correspondence, accounting records, legal papers, court cases, and receipts. Other records include published materials, copies of original materials, scrapbooks, photographs, notes, and exhibit text.

SERIES DESCRIPTIONS

Series I. Elrie Robinson Collection of Printing and Typography, (1828-1898, circa 1990, undated)

Elrie Robinson was born in Alvarado, Texas, and moved to New Orleans, Louisiana, in 1906. His wife, May E. Leake, was the editor and publisher of the St. Francisville newspaper, The True Democrat. She passed in 1925, but Elrie continued editing the newspaper. He also worked as a journalist, a printer, and was a historian of West Feliciana and printing. Robinson collected type and was an agent in the reappearance of 19th Century ornamental type.

The Elrie Robinson Collection of Printing and Typography subseries (1828-1898, circa 1990, undated) mostly contains examples of printing and typography including tickets, advertising, orders, receipts, and rate cards. Other materials in the series relate to newspapers. The materials generally geographically reflect materials from West Feliciana Parish.

This series is arranged in alphabetical order by type of document.

Series II. Manuscripts Relating to West Feliciana Parish, (1774, 1796-1949, circa 2000, undated)

The Manuscripts Relating to West Feliciana Parish series (1774, 1796-1949, circa 2000) contains manuscript collected by Elisabeth K. Dart or obtained by her from a family member associated with the records. These manuscripts are not directly associated with research topics in Series IV. Instead, they are individual records with the common subject being West Feliciana Parish.

The series contains correspondence, debts, pawns, sales, petitions, successions, indentures, lottery tickets, minutes, receipts, wills, letters of tutorship, and accounting records. The majority of the materials are correspondence and most of the materials, including the correspondence, relate to public law.

The series is arranged in alphabetical order according to last name, with the exception of court cases. There are a few materials arranged by document type.

Series III. Photographs Relating to West Feliciana Parish, (1900-2005, undated)

The Photographs Relating to West Feliciana Parish series (1900-2005, undated) contains photographs of numerous structures in West Feliciana Parish, including plantations, houses, businesses, public buildings, churches, and cemeteries. The photographs also depict residents of West Feliciana and events held by the West Feliciana Historical Society, which Dart was involved in as a cofounder and as a historian. The majority of the photographs are black and white images, but there are also some postcards, printed artwork, a transparency, and pieces of scrapbooks.

Of interest in this series is the compilation of St. Francisville photographs, descriptions, and published materials by Jim Murphy, particularly those documenting the Julius Freyhan School. Julius Freyhan, a Jewish resident of St. Francisville, married into the Wolf family. He and his wife's reputation came from their donation that began St. Francisville's first public school, the Julius Freyhan School. For more information on the Freyhan and Wolf family, see the Series IV, Subseries C. Jews and Jewish Life. Also of interest in this subseries is the Mrs. Robert E. Crump scrapbook, which contains pictures and descriptions of individuals, places, and West Feliciana life.

Folders are arranged in alphabetical order.

Series IV. Research and Exhibit Planning, (1787-2003, undated)

The Research and Exhibit Planning series (1787-2003, undated) contains Dart's personal research and her research performed for the West Feliciana Historical Society, which was used in the Society's exhibits and lectures. The records in this series consist of manuscript materials related directly to the topics researched, as well as notes, exhibit text, and published materials related to the research.

Subseries A. Doctors and Medicine, (1963, circa 2000, undated)

The Doctors and Medicine subseries (1963, circa 2000, undated) contains research on yellow fever, midwifery, childbirth, and general medicine in Louisiana. It contains copies of medical texts from the earth 19th Century, published works, and Dart's personal notes.

Folders are arranged in alphabetical order.

Subseries B. Free People of Color, (1832-1842, 1980-1984)

The Free People of Color subseries (1832-1842, 1980-1984) contains research into Louisiana's free people of color population, specifically in West Feliciana Parish. The subseries contains Dart's notes and writings, as well as published articles, newspaper clippings, and manuscripts. The manuscripts are legal papers documenting cases including free people of color and property disputes. Dart utilized the research for writing a paper on the free people of color. She utilized the legal papers to examine what type of civil liberties free people of color maintained in legal disputes.

Of specific interest in this subseries is Dart's research into West Feliciana's number of slave manumissions and research into West Feliciana's free people of color. This research includes historical information regarding individual free people of color and freed slaves.

Folders are arranged in alphabetical order.

Subseries C. Jews and Jewish Life, (1850-1916, 1981-circa 2003)

The Jews and Jewish Life series (1850-1916, 1981-circa 2003) contains Dart's research for a West Feliciana Historical Society exhibit. The research explores Jewish life in West Feliciana, particularly Bayou Sara, and includes genealogical studies of prominent Jewish families including Freyhan, Meyers, Wolf, Carter, Smith, Rosenthal, and Burgas. Many of these families were general merchandisers. The records included in this series are receipts from these various general merchandisers, published materials, notes, and exhibit text.

Of specific interest in this subseries is the material related to Julius Freyhan, "Freyhan, Julius and M. & E. Wolf Realty and Investments research" and the Freyhan and Wolf genealogy. Freyhan married into the Wolf family, and he and his wife's reputation came from their donation that started St. Francisville's first public school, the Julius Freyhan School. For more information on the school and images, see the folder titled "Murphy's, Jim photographs of Saint Francisville with text" in the Series III. Photographs Relating to West Feliciana Parish.

Folders are arranged in alphabetical order.

Subseries C. West Feliciana Historical Society Vernacular Architecture Survey, (1969, 1975-1978)

This subseries contains the West Feliciana Historical Society Vernacular Architecture Survey (1969, 1975-1978) completed by Dart. The survey includes photographic and textual documentation of numerous local buildings such as dwellings, dependencies, churches, halls, and commercial buildings. Dart completed the survey for the West Feliciana Historical Society exhibit of the same name. The records include photographs, negatives, contact sheets, research on housing, and hand drawn floor plans. The photographs depict architectural features such as carpentry and masonry.

Folders are arranged in alphabetical order.

Subseries D. West Feliciana Railroad from 1826 to 1845, (1897, 1931, 1982, undated)

The West Feliciana Railroad from 1826 to 1845 subseries (1897, 1931, 1982, undated) contains research Dart used for her article "Working on the Railroad: The West Feliciana, 1828-1842" in the Journal of the Louisiana Historical Association in 1984. The subseries contains notes, transcriptions of manuscript materials, correspondence pertaining to the article and research, and published materials. Dart began researching the railroad, which stretched from St. Francisville to Woodville, Mississippi, at the approximate time of its 150th anniversary in 1978.

Subseries E. West Florida Rebellion, (1787-1832, 1953, 1990-1993, undated)

In 1810, English speaking residents in the Spanish territory of West Florida removed Spanish authorities from the territory in a rebellion in Baton Rouge. The dissenters established a Convention and government and called the area the West Florida Republic, which included the area east of the Mississippi and Baton Rouge.

The rebellion started when dissenters attacked Baton Rouge on September 23, 1810. The governor of the territory of West Florida for Spain, Governor Delassus, surrendered. The Convention of the West Florida Republic named Fulwar Skipwith governor, William C. C. Clairborne Army Commander, and the capital St. Francisville. The Convention of the West Florida Republic petitioned President Madison for annexation, but Madison believed the Republic to be part of the original Louisiana Purchase and ordered Governor William C. C. Clairborne to take possession on December 10, 1810.

The West Florida Rebellion subseries (1787-1832, 1953, 1990-1993, undated) contains Dart's research for the West Feliciana Historical Society exhibit of the same topic. This research includes correspondence, deeds, and legal papers relating to the rebellion as well as Dart's personal notes, exhibit text, published materials, and copies of original documents. The manuscripts include correspondence from the Convention of the West Florida Republic, William C. C. Clairborne, Governor Charles Dehault Delassus, John Rhea, Philemon Thomas, and Thomas Estevan.

Folders are arranged in alphabetical order.
